Dear Friends of Terra Blanca,

As I begin to write this holiday greeting I feel we are blessed to have an extended family of winery friends. We have enjoyed having an opportunity throughout the year to visit and share a glass of wine with many of you. Now that I have had a chance to catch my breath after crush, reflection shows that we have harvested the best fruit yet from our Red Mountain estate vineyard. A very warm September and October marked the 2001-growing season. While the warm fall brought the sugars up in the grapes early, our patience in waiting for the flavors in the grapes to fully develop prior to picking was rewarded in fruit with immense concentration and depth. The lots of Syrah are so dark opaque black in color that the young wine looks like liquid black glass.

2001 brought a number of milestones for Terra Blanca. The Red Mountain area was formally recognized as a separate and distinct appellation and with just over 4000 acres, it is the first appellation in Washington that focuses on the flavors and concentration of the grapes, not just basic geography. In the spring we released our first vintage of our proprietary red blend, ONYX followed with our first estate Chardonnay's in April. This fall we released our second vintages of estate Cabernet, Syrah and a Semillon Ice Wine.

With our focus on red wine production from our Red Mountain Estate Vineyard the 1998 and 1999 reds that we have released this fall are richly extracted huge wines showcasing our estate vineyard.

Our 1998 Red Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon captures the power and grace of Red Mountain with smooth fragrances of cedar, blackberry and plum floating over a heart of black cherry and leather. Elegant hints of dark fruit ride a wave of currant and spice while full ripe tannins wrap a core of herb, berry and oak laced plum on the finish. The 1999 Red Mountain Syrah has hints of rose, raspberry, and candied orange that rise from the glass. Plum and fig intertwine with tones of oak and spice on the palate before ending in a frenzy of leather and floral flavors on the finish. A small (only 270 case) lot of Syrah hand selected from a portion of our estate vineyard was bottled as 1999 Block 8 Syrah. The Block 8 Syrah is darker and deeper in flavor profile than the 1999 Red Mountain Syrah and is a blend of predominately one of the three clones of Syrah that we grow with 2% Viognier. The wine is characterized by hints of leather, tobacco and raspberry that rise from the glass. Dark plum, fig, blue berry and cedar spice leaves a deep impression on the palate. Floral and spice notes float over a velvet finish.

Enclosed is an order form for those wishing to send special Christmas presents or stock their cellars for the holidays!
